

Invisible writing

Question 13: The advantage of the fruity methods of invisible writing is that they

- a) use materials that are readily available.
- b) require no knowledge of steganography.
- c) cannot be intercepted by spies or counterfeiters.
- d) cannot be decoded without knowing the sender.

Question 14: Revealing invisible words written with fruit juice requires

- a) powdering the message with chalk dust.
- b) scorching the paper the message is on.
- c) holding the paper up to a flame or light.
- d) heating the dried juicy solution.

Question 15: A good title for the instructions would be

- a) Oranges and lemons.
- b) Steganography for professionals.
- c) Security through obscurity.
- d) It's a revelation!

Question 16: To write a message with fruit juice you can use a

- a) pencil or cotton bud.
- b) cotton bud or toothpick.
- c) candle or toothpick.
- d) finger or pencil.

Question 17: The exclamation "BINGO!" is used to express

- a) satisfaction and success.
- b) surprise and dismay.
- c) conquest and superiority.
- d) surprise and bewilderment.

Question 18: The text changes tone after the first paragraph. It changes from

- a) formal to casual.
- b) scientific to relaxed.
- c) technical to indifferent.
- d) factual to casual.